This handbook is written in plain and comprehensible language; it is addressed to everyone and creates a feeling for the reader like a friend who is speaking to him. Everything you will read are suggestions and views of various philosophers on key issues of life and how to help people live happily in this life. This particular way of thinking comes from the past when thousands of years ago philosophers saw the need for the spiritual cultivation of man as a sentient being in order to be able to better enjoy life in organized societies. The handbook consists of three chapters which are as follows: in the first chapter, advice is given in order to enable a person to cultivate a good relationship with himself; in the second chapter, advice is given on how to cultivate a good relationship with other people, starting with family, friends, neighbors, and with all those who coexist in the same society; the third chapter familiarizes you with the concepts of life and death so you can better appreciate the value of time and life while at the same time relieving yourself of the fear of death.

Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts¹ we have not used OCR (Optical Character Recognition) as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos.² In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches, etc., we have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images so they represent accurately the original artefact.
